SOUTH AFRICAN AFFAIRS

OUR DUTY TO THE BECHUANAS.

in which it will be our duty to move in that direction as far as we can in concurrence with the Government. And I must say, although recent years in certain respects painful, I am sure that they have yet received their full reward, even as far as the Trade Union movement is concerned. I am glad, while I think we may contemplate with satisfaction this important fact—that controversy there is a general sense of approval as to the course of policy followed by the Government, and the Anglican feeling, so far as it goes, no longer exists. I am not sure that I have been able to give you a full and complete picture of the whole, but I think I am justified in saying that I have made to the House.

THE ZULU QUESTION.

On October 24, said—When the Government proposed to proceed either to take upon ourselves a project of annexation, or to leave the Zulu people to their fate, we were under the pressure of absolute necessity, and we were not in a position to range of our power. It might be said that the Government had a popular course at Natal or the Cape, but I think that the Government is entitled to protect Natal from the Zulu. Unfortunately, these savage tribes have been so much increased in numbers which has happened before the eyes of the world—the party that got into the Zulu country, and the Zulu country, and occupied the territory, and as allies. I do not know whether the Government has any other alternatives either taking the Zulu under control, the responsibility of which would be placed upon the Government, or useless to us for the purposes of the object, or of leaving it.

British enterprise. A third proposition was made by the Government—namely, that if it could be proved that what the formalities were for a slave trade would be valuable any future occupation in Africa. It was no doubt at question should be settled, but the Conference the opinions of which should be brought to bear upon the matter. As one of the slave trade, upon private property, the question of free ships and free goods, the Government had no hesitation in inviting to the Conference. The United States did not view the securing of the free ports as entering into the Conference, but understood under the treaties which were concluded by Consul Hewitt should not be decided.

AUSTRO-GERMAN ALLIANCE

Vienna correspondent of the Times writes:

Oct 23 said:—The Cracow newspaper "Prasa" contained a statement to the effect that the relations between Austria and Germany for the past year assumed for both parties a character of a "cold war". This allegation is an altogether scarcely deserving contradiction. It is insinuated that by the meeting in Cracow, which was an approach of Russia and Austria, the relations between the two great dialike in Cracow) had been somewhat improved. The alliance had been weakened. I refer to it refer on this subject to the S. E. alliance, with which the Hungarian relations had been weakened, and where in the most recent relations with Germany are described as settled the matter by affirming that a treaty between Germany and Austria existed a treaty between Germany and Austria.

SOUTH AFRICAN AFFAIRS.

Following declarations have been made in reference to affairs in South Africa.

OUR DUTY TO THE BECHUANAS.

Mr. Chamberlain, in speaking in the House of Lords, said:—

"When the Government state their policy in regard to the Bechuanas, their action" shall be paid they mean.

[illegible]

in which it will be our duty to move on in that direction, as far as we can, and I think that the Government and I must say, although recent years in certain respects painful, demonstrate that they have yet received our aid, even as far as the Transvaal, while I think we may contemplate with satisfaction this important fact—that the occasion in the recent history of controversy there is a general recognition as to the course of policy to be pursued, and the old distinction between the Anglians and the Africans is no longer so distinct. I am in the population of the Cape Colony, I think goes, I think I am justified in saying that I have made to the House.

THE ZULU QUESTION.

berly on October 24, said:—When we appeared to be only two practical alternatives—either to take upon ourselves a responsibility for restoring to Natal, or to leave the Zulus to their own devices, the latter was the only one that was fair. The pressure of absolute necessity was outside the range of our power. It might have been a popular course at Natal or the Cape, but it was not sufficient to protect Natal from the Zulus. Unfortunately, these savage tribes were not only among themselves; they began to take to the world—the party that got the lion's share; they called in the Boers, who, in addition, occupied the territory of the Zulus, and the worst of the worst neighbours than the Zulus otherwise. There was no choice of alternatives—either taking the responsibility upon ourselves, or leaving enormous, while the territory was useless to us for the purposes of our object, or of leaving it.

THE CONGO CONFERENCE

Government to Germany, and the Government of Austria to Austria. The Government is the that the doctor of Vienna of 1818 in regard to the West Coast of Africa. The article has nothing whatever to do with the two subjects were not proposed and the question was raised for at there should be freedom of commerce should be examined in detail, warmly welcome to this country, as clearly as the Government—namely, that it is what the formalities were to be for a valid future occupation of territories in Africa. It was no doubt the Conference of 1884-85, and the world should be brought to bear on the Conference of 1884-85, and the of the slave trade, upon private question of free ships and free goods, and the Conference. The Conference would enter the securing of the free world, understanding that the rights of the Conference should be decided by Consul Hewitt should not be decided by the Conference.

Oct 23 said:—The Cracow newspaper "Praca" contained a statement to the effect that the relations between Austria and Germany for the past year assumed for both parties a character of a "cold war". This allegation is an altogether scarcely deserving contradiction. RELEASE OF THE CLAIMANT Tichborne claimant was released from custody at 6 o'clock this morning, having been removed from the Prison to Pontentville by the police last night. The Governor of the Prison received telegraphic instructions from London to release him, and ordered to put on the civilian clothes which he had made for himself in the prison, as well as his own personal effects, and accompany him. They left for the railway station at 7 o'clock this morning. It was only when the prisoner was taken away that it became known that the Tichborne claimant had been removed. He was discharged at 10 minutes past 9 o'clock this morning from Pontentville. The unexpected visit of the claimant was a surprise to all concerned here today. There was little demonstration connected with his departure, except by Mr. Quartermaster Keet and some of the staff.

The claimant has undergone a terrible ordeal extending to 10 years and e-jury, been kept in a cage for three months. After a trial in the old Ques-

Following declarations have been made in reference to affairs in South Africa.

OUR DUTY TO THE BECHUANAS.

Herby speaking in the House of Lords said:—

"When the Government state their intention" shall be paid they mean tion shall be maintained and enforced. We are not to receive any aid from any other country. We have telegraphed, and we are sending by express, to all the States in the Americas, to let them know that they can obtain a peaceable solution of the problem. We are not parting with our control, but we are giving our friends and our friends' friends advice. We will supply a military force, but we will not put it on their shoulders. I do not think that we are anxious to put an end to this war. We are anxious with regard to that country, and we are anxious to see that the Government of that country, that the Cape Government, make that country a part of the United States. We are not putting these unfortunate people on the ground, speaking on the same level as the Government of the United States. I think, at the time, that I was deemed to be a just position on the subject. I am not sure that I was, which we deem to be necessary. I am not sure that we are not making up our minds to adhere to the Convention of 1845, which is with that view, that he is those lines, the stipulations contained in the Convention of 1845, but both ourselves to adhere to the Convention of 1845, and we would be adhered to by others.

in which it will be our duty to move on in that direction, as far as we can, and I think that the Government and I must say, although recent years in certain respects painful, demonstrate that they have yet received our aid, even as far as the Transvaal, while I think we may contemplate with satisfaction this important fact—that the occasion in the recent history of controversy there is a general recognition as to the course of policy to be pursued, and the old distinction between the Anglians and the Africans is no longer so distinct. I am in the population of the Cape Colony, I think goes, I think I am justified in saying that I have made to the House.

THE ZULU QUESTION.

berly on October 24, said:—When we appeared to be only two practical alternatives—either to take upon ourselves a responsibility for restoring to Natal, or to leave the Zulus to their own devices, the Boers pressed the pressure of absolute necessity upon our hands, and we were forced to range of our power. It might have been a popular course at Natal or the Cape, but it was not sufficient to protect Natal from the Zulus. Unfortunately, these savage tribes were not among themselves; they began to quarrel among themselves, and the Boers of the world—the party that got the lion's share; they called in the Boers, who invaded, and occupied the territory of the Zulus, and the Boers, who were worse neighbours than the Zulus themselves. There was no choice of alternatives—either taking the Zulus into our hands, or leaving them enormous, while the territory was useless to us for the purposes of our object, or of leaving it.

Oct 23 said:—The Cracow newspaper "Praca" contained a statement to the effect that the relations between Austria and Germany for the past year assumed for both parties a character of a "cold war". This allegation is an altogether scarcely deserving contradiction. It is insinuated that by the meeting of the two emperors in Vienna, which as an approach of Russia, and the consequent alliance with great dislike in Cracow) had been the cause of the alliance had been weakened. I refer to it on this subject to the S. E. of the alliance, with which the Hungarian relations had been threatened, and where in the most serious manner the relations with Germany are desecrated. The matter by affirming that a treaty between Germany and Austria existed a treaty between Germany and Austria.

The article has nothing whatever to do with the two subjects were not proposed and the question was raised for at there should be freedom of entry and welcome to this country, as clearly stated in the preamble of the Government—namely, that it is what the formalities were to be for a valid future occupation of territories in Africa. It was no doubt a question of the second session of the Conference the people of the world should be brought to bear upon the question of the slave trade, of the slave trade, upon privateers, the question of free ships and free goods, and the question of the slave trade, invitation to the Conference. The Conference to enter the securing of the free trade, the question of the slave trade, would enter into the Conference, understanding that the rights of the slave trade, the rights of the slave trade, by Consul Hewitt should not be decided.

Froude's new volumes of the Biography of will do a good deal towards rehabilitating the latter-day prophet in the estimation of public men. Mr. Froude makes a very good defence of himself for having exposed with so unsparring a frankness the weaknesses of his friend. He maintains that Carlyle, like Othello, wished to be spoken of as a hero, and that he would have thought him-oned if his biographer had extenuated any failings. Happily, says Mr. Froude, these few; and it was the very goodness of the man led him to feel greater pangs of remorse squabbles with his wife than he need have. To say the truth, Mrs. Carlyle's shrewish must have made her rather an uncomfortable to live with, and Carlyle was not gifted with the patience of Socrates. Nothing is more enjoyable in the volumes than Carlyle's estimate of Disraeli and Gladstone. The latter he seems to have held in special contempt, and his pungent criticism of Prime Minister's character has been read this amidst shouts of appreciative laughter in a Conservative household. To say that the poem is extreme and unfair is merely to say that it is intensely Carlylean. The tenderness of the poem for Disraeli is to some extent redeemed by the fact that the latter was the first man of eminence who recognized Carlyle as honour to the Victorian age. The correspondence between Disraeli and Carlyle relating to the poem, to the former, when he was Prime Minister, to confer upon the author of the French lived a princely life, and pension, does count to him. Disraeli's letter opens in a somewhat of a fashion, but there is real goodness of sense as well as rare delicacy of feeling in his effort of trying to persuade the sturdy Carlyle to accept the advantage of the offer. The effort failed, but Carlyle was deeply moved by it, and it is difficult to read his dignified pathetic reply to Disraeli's letter without moved by it to quick sympathy with him.

Mr. Dufferin has accepted an invitation to dine with the members of the Northbrook Club to-morrow week; but the announcement, that Sir w Ellis is to take the chair has disappointed members of the club, who had hoped that Salisbury would consent to preside on the occasion. It is quite certain that Lord Dufferin will make a pretty speech, and avoid committing himself in any way. His speech at Belfast has been much discussed, but with no very satisfactory results. The Morning Post has started the stupid story that Lord Dufferin, in an interview with Gladstone, declared he would resign forthwith if the Home Government attempted to interfere with him. This absurd story is based upon no substantial foundation that the passage in Belfast speech in which the new Viceroy made a very natural appeal to his countrymen to until they heard what he had to say for self before condemning him for any acts of Indian administration, and to believe that one who had lived in India for so long would be in a spot must know more of Indian affairs than he who had lived thousands of miles away. Nothing but the most cautious and guarded words should be more cautiously worded than Lord Dalhousie's reference to Russia. One may suspect that the Viceroy had professed too much in his profuse assurances and will towards his friend M. de Giers. There something significant in his calling to mind Russia Minister's desire, expressed to him, the Russian advance in Central Asia might reach its "natural and permanent limits."

Duffren seems anxious to enable M. de Giers to realize that wish by fixing the southern boundary of the Russian Empire and taking care that Asia shall not be overstepped. This is the only way to secure safety for England to pursue. If a definite line, and say that the Russians do not cross without providing the English with a response for the two countries may be reached for a certain time.

intention of Mr. Mackenzie Wallace as Lord Chief of the Privy Seal, Secretary of State for India. It may, of course, be accepted as a compliment to Russia, by Mr. Wallace likes that; but Mr. Wallace is also a good patriot, the fact that the new Viceroy has chosen as most intimate counsellor one who knows India thoroughly only shows how strongly occupied his mind is with the idea that in going India he will require to have his thoughts constantly turned towards the north.

In present circumstances, the Prince of Wales has found it impossible to accept the Bombay invitation to become President of the London Committee for an Exhibition that would clash with his own; and, of course, P. Cunliffe Owen, Sir G. Birdwood,

Mr. Pedder have, in like manner, had no on but to refuse to serve on the Committee. I hardly say that when I speak of the year 7 I mean the winter of that year. A mere postponement to the spring would not be long enough to get rid of existing complications. I have been away in the North of Scotland for week, and have thus missed seeing the new met. But I have got seats for next Monday, will let you know next week what I think of performance. Mr. Wilson Barrett had enough to send him on the first night to fill his

ary. Miss Mary Anderson presented him with a large bouquet composed of the choicest orchids. The Americans certainly know how to do this kind of thing well. I was amused to hear the other Americans, from an intimate friend of Wilson Barrett's, before going to America, put his hands affectionately on his shoulders, and said, "My dear Barrett, take my advice, and have nothing to do with Shakespeare. He doesn't repay you for all the trouble and expense he puts you to." I dare say this advice was given in all sincerity, but it ends a little oddly.

THE ADEN COURT-MARTIAL

The Madras Mail states, as the result of the court-martial appointed to try Lieutenant George E. S. S. Power of the Essex Regiment, Aden, for striking his commanding officer, Lieutenant-Colonel Rennie, that the prisoner has been cashiered, and Colonel Rennie deprived of his command. The Madras Mail adds: "The defence mand. Life Madras paper adds: "The officer involved was regarding the long-continued advocacy on which was given by Colonel Remington that that officer had not conducted himself with a good temper and good taste towards the public, but had pursued that nagging line which caused Colonel Kennedy to lose his command in connection with the Gilbert Court-martial case in Madras several years ago." We have good reason for believing that this version of the result is accurate, and that whatever finding may be justice, it will not at any rate be in favour of Lieutenant Power being cashiered. As already announced, the documents in connexion with the case have been forwarded to the Commander-in-Chief of the Bombay Presidency, and they may eventually be transmitted to the Commander-in-Chief in India, at Simla.

We have no fault to find with the execution of this specimen of the metallurgist's art, the tawdry value of which may perhaps be estimated by the rate of exchange ruling the workman. But what we do most severely reprove is that Smith, Jones, or Robinson might, as well, so the medical text discloses, have been the successful competitor as the artist. It was a medal, we have already given a description of the medal, which there is no occasion now to re-examine, the reverse side, within the turbulent border, have been the subject of a contest "awarded to" the rest of the space being left to be filled up apparently at the option of the artist. Now, it is not the artist, but the artist's medal is, literally and truthfully, the medal of all, for, as we have said, the filling up of the space is left to the person to whom it was awarded in the letter.

A TERRIBLE political tragedy is reported from La Crosse, Wisconsin. Francis Burton, president of a Republican club, while arranging a torchlight procession was suddenly shot and killed by a disreputable character named Mitchell, who was arrested and placed in the gaol. The crime caused much excitement, and the procession moved on as usual to the gaol demanding Mitchell's body. The sheriff stoutly defied the place; but the mob battered down the doors, effected an entrance, captured Mitchell and hanged him to a tree in the courtyard of the house.

SELECT MEDICAL OPINIONS.

Sir G. DUNCAN GIBB, Bart., M.D.,
Physician to the Westminster Hospital.

"The value of Dr. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL as a therapeutic agent in a number of diseases, chiefly of an exhaustive character, has been admitted by the world of medicine; but, in addition, I have found it a remedy of great power in the treatment of many Affections of the Throat and Larynx, especially in Consumption of the latter, where it will sustain life when everything else fails."

Dr. SINCLAIR COGHILL,
Physician to the Royal National Hospital for Consumption, Ventnor.

"I have convinced myself that in Tubercular and the various forms of Strumous Disease, Dr. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL possesses greater therapeutic efficacy than any other Cod Liver Oil with which I am acquainted. It was especially noted, in a large number of cases in which the patients protested they had never been able to retain or digest other Cod Liver Oil, that Dr. DE JONGH'S OIL was not only tolerated, but taken easily, and with marked benefit."

Dr. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL is supplied ONLY in IMPERIAL Half-Pints, Pints and Quarts, sealed with Berre's Patent Capsule impressed on the top with Dr. DE JONGH'S Stamp, and on the side with his Signature, and the Signature of ANSAR, HARFORD & Co.; and bearing under the wrapper a Label with the same Stamp and Signatures.

NOTICES.

THE "BULL DOG'S HEAD" BRAND.
(Bass's Ale & Guinness's Stout.)
READ BROTHERS, of London, request purchasers of their Bottled Ale and Stout to ask for "THE DOG'S HEAD BRAND" because another and totally distinct Bottler uses the figure of a Bull Dog, and thus two bottlings of entirely different character may both be called "BULL DOG". The original "Bull Dog" mark is the registered property of READ BROTHERS, and their bottling still often goes by that name, but the title of "Dog's Head Brand" is theirs exclusively and is the only one that is protected by the Invention of the London Justice of England.
